

Sign language

People with disabilities often have to find different ways of communicating. For example, many people who cannot hear cannot learn to talk. They use hand or finger signs to communicate with other people. We call this sign language. Different signs have different meanings.

MARTIN

